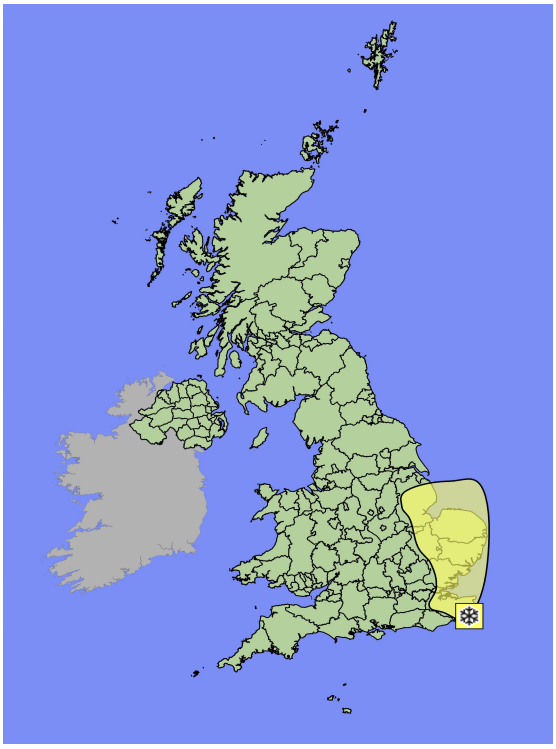
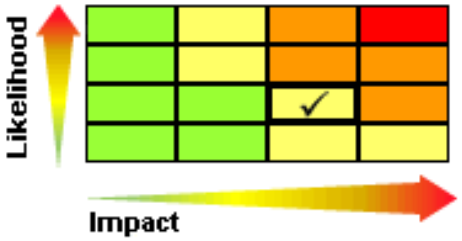
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
Part of a frontal zone affecting France on Saturday is expected to move northwards into southeastern and eastern England during Sunday, perhaps reaching northeast England late on Sunday. This frontal zone will lead to some snowfall, though in coastal areas snow may turn to rain and sleet. The westward and northward extent of this snow is rather uncertain, though the current most likely outcome suggests scope for accumulations of 2-5cm over parts of eastern and southeastern England.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Alert of Snow

Valid from 12:00 on Sun, 20th Jan 2013 until 23:59 on Sun, 20th Jan 2013

A band of snow is likely to spread northwards across parts of southeastern and eastern England during Sunday afternoon and evening, bringing accumulations of 2-5cm snow to some areas. The public should be aware of the risk of disruption to travel.
